AI Coach Recommendation

Your current ratio of 0.56 indicates that your recent training volume has dropped significantly below your baseline capacity, leaving you under-prepared for higher intensity work. Over the next few days, you should focus on a gradual, progressive increase in volume—aiming to add roughly 10-15% to your daily load to safely close that gap. Prioritize consistent, moderate-intensity sessions rather than one massive spike, as this will help you rebuild your chronic capacity without risking injury as you ramp back up.
